

CLINICAL FELLOW HEALTH LAW AND POLICY CLINIC

SUMMARY:

The Center for Health Law and Policy Innovation (CHLPI) Clinical Fellow works under the supervision of CHLPI clinical instructors to advocate for legal, regulatory, and policy reforms to expand access to high-quality healthcare; to reduce health disparities; and to promote more equitable and effective health and public health systems.

This position represents a unique opportunity to work within Harvard Law School's clinical program, to join a dynamic public interest and clinical teaching health and public health law and policy clinic, and practice in burgeoning areas of state and national importance.

The Fellow works with clinical staff and students on policy development and advocacy projects to increase access to health care and the quality of health care for low-income individuals and families, explicitly working toward racial justice and equality goals. The Fellow will focus on the role of law and policy in enabling the healthcare system to (1) effectively address the social determinants of health and (2) engage patients fully in their care despite geographic, linguistic, cultural, or other barriers. Regular travel is required in order to work directly with our partners and clients in various locations around the country.

The Fellow works to build upon and extend CHLPI's innovative work in health and public health law and policy. The Fellow also participates in office-wide projects and in the Center's program as a laboratory for innovation in legal practice and clinical legal education.

CHLPI is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse staff, committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourages applications from minorities, women and members of the LGBTQ community.
