STUDENT RESEARCH ASSISTANT OPPORTUNITY

Hourly rate: $16
Expected hours per week: Flexible and subject to agreement but not to exceed 14 hours/week
Expected dates: This opportunity is expected to start as soon as possible and terminate upon completion of the agreed-upon deliverables.

All work will be conducted remotely

Description:
The Center for Health Law and Policy Innovation (CHLPI) of Harvard Law School is seeking a Student Research Assistant. Every year, as part of CHLPI’s work with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, CHLPI publishes analyses of coverage for key services and medications relating to HIV, HIV prevention, hepatitis C, and latent tuberculosis. These resources support health care provider education and medication prescribing, and help advocates monitor access to care across the Commonwealth.

CHLPI is seeking to hire an RA to review and document coverage across Massachusetts health plans for the 2021 plan year. The RA will also have an opportunity to support a nationwide review of Medicaid coverage for hepatitis C treatment.

For more information about CHLPI visit www.chlpi.org.

How to apply:
We welcome applications from students of non-law disciplines, such as from public health, medicine, nutrition, and other related fields. Please submit your resume to Rachel Landauer, rlandauer@law.harvard.edu.

EEO Statement:
We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law.